

MES Family Update - August 5

Good afternoon MES Families,

We hope that all of you have fared as well as possible with the storm. If you are without power, we hope that it is restored sooner rather than later. Quite a test we've all been given this year.

As a result of the power outages, there will unfortunately be no Virtual Story Time this evening. We'll hope to see everyone next Wednesday evening at 6:30 p.m.

We'd like to once again thank everyone for all of your responses to surveys and Google forms, as well as the feedback around placement. We are continuing to work to put class placements together, and determine which students will be in School A and which in School B in case MES needs to go to our Hybrid Model.

We are still working towards our goal of Friday, August 14th for getting class placement and School A or B determination mailed out to families.

Although we have weekly communication with other area schools, we do realize that all reopening plans are not the same. Each school district will need to make decisions that work best for their students, staff and families. At this point in time, based on the information that we have from Chatham Health, the DPH and the CSDE, Marlborough Elementary School is moving forward with the plan to reopen school for all students who are opting for in-person school. Anything different will come directly from MES and may be different from RHAM or other area schools.

We hope that you a nice rest of the week and a good weekend.

Dan & Kim
